GOVERNOR QUIZZES CANDIDATE HARDING

Wants to Know Why Davis and Rogers Did Not Settle.

Wooster, O., Oct. 1.—Governor Harmon accepted the challenge of Warren G. Harding to talk about Democratic grafters. The governor was received here with blazing red fire and Roman candles.

Concluding a detailed discussion of every phase of the graft expose, the governor said:

"Mr. Harding had better keep his mouth closed about the record of David Staley Creamer until Hy D. Davis and W. S. Rogers of Cleveland, both former fire marshals, pay back the money which the investigation committee says they owe the state, more than $10,000 apiece.

"How about Hy Davis, now United States marshal by grace of President Taft? How about Colonel Rogers, whom I was obliged to dismiss for gross incompetency? Let Mr. Harding answer why these men do not pay back to the state the money they illegally are charged with having drawn, and further, why did Rogers require twice as many men to investigate as many fires as Mr. Creamer? Was he one of the knowing smilers?"

SWears TO STORY

Illinois Legislator Says Lorimer Offered Him Postoffice For Vote.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—That William Lorimer personally offered a "substantial consideration" for a legislator's vote in behalf of himself as a candidate for United States senator, was the sworn statement made before the senatorial investigating committee by Henry A. Shepard, Democratic member of the legislature from Jerseyville. Shepard told the senators that Lorimer met him in an ante-room of a hotel in Springfield and promised to appoint anyone that Shepard might name as postmaster at Jerseyville. The prosecution declared that Shepard's testimony showed that Lorimer had an intimate personal knowledge of the alleged plot to purchase his election by rewarding members of the legislature who voted for him.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

THE STEAM PLOW IN PALESTINE

According to Vice-Consul General Meminger of Beirut, the first American steam plow has made its appearance in Syria, and is installed on a 12,000-acre farm in the Lebanon region midway between Beirut and Damascus. For a starter, its operators put the thrashing apparatus into action and in an hour took care of as much grain as 20 men could beat out in 10 days under the native system. Next they plowed for 15 days, averaging 16 acres a day in sun-baked red loam, mixed with stumps. In this time two men stirred up as much ground as 60 Syrian farmers could scratch with their old hand plows in 60 days.

The introduction of this plow promises to revolutionize farming in the Orient, and steam thrashers soon may be at work where Abraham's herd once browsed.

The report of the demonstrator of this pioneer steam plow gives us one more convincing proof of the uniformity of the mold in which the human mind is cast. He says:

I encountered many difficulties, the chief of which was the ignorance of the farm workmen concerning the use of steam machinery and an apparent indifference and even hostility towards its introduction. There were strong prejudices to overcome also from subordinate farm managers who erroneously believed that the introduction of these machines will diminish the importance and value of positions held by the managers.

We laugh at this distance over the groundless worries of the sons of Syria, but somehow their objections have a familiar and homely ring.—Detroit Free Press.

Domestic and Industrial Education

Mt. Vernon, O., Oct. 1, 1910.

Editor Banner:—

A more hopeful indication for the future happiness and well being of the home-makers of the nation would be assured if the girls who are completing their high school work were properly drilled in the science of domestic economy and the many other duties pertaining to home life. If such studies could be made a part of school-girl curriculum there would not be so much fear and guessing about the "new woman" and her effect upon the life duties of women, each in her own sphere and generation. All would be better adapted to individual environment. Fewer disappointments would present fewer divorces.

The public schools of the land are annually turning out millions of girl graduates—for what? Ornaments, or home-soldiers in the battle of life turning out graduates possessed of a more or less knowledge of the arts, history and science, but, in the main, lamentable deficient in all that goes to make a good help-mate—a good house-keeper.

If girl life could be inoculated with a desire and healthy interest in those things which go to make content and happiness in the coming home-years of their lives, if they could be induced to mingle with their Latin, German, mathematics and other abstruse studies, a proper proportion of the information necessary for home-making there would be no danger that her normal instincts would be diverted or that she would be led astray from the functions of home-life into the more dangerous (if more enticing) paths which lead to the so-called broader spheres of the new-woman—spheres which, like those open to man, are sadly overfilled.

Girls should be taught to recognize the fact that home-making is as much a profession and calls for as much skill and ability as do many of the so-called learned professions. Any woman who can, under conditions prevailing at the present time, make a skillful and efficient house-keeper with ability to direct the finances appertaining thereto, can, if she choose to turn her attention to them, to spend the same amount of energy and preparation, make of herself a successful business woman, teacher, lawyer or physician—but neither of these can make a good housekeeper without equal preparation, and the openings for the housekeepers (home-makers) are as a thousand to one of the other professions.

Our schools, overlooking the fact that the home-life demand is paramountly the greatest, are preparing all for special duties (the supply far exceeding the demand), and are leaving to the uneducated mothers of the land a duty which should be the province of the state.

The girl, who, looking forward to the time when she must meet these home-life responsibilities, would spend part of her school years preparing for them, would show far more judgment than would she who preferred to content herself with the purely intellectual and those literary endings that go to making up the customary "liberal education"—than would she who waited until taken from mother's home before she had learned to manage the one to which she was going—her, deceiving herself and companion in certain misery.

Because of the annual output of newly prepared girl-specialists, special and profitable positions are becoming more and more hard to secure, and less remunerative, to say nothing of the needless competition against man, who, otherwise, might become a keeper of and protector of those who are fast driving him from the fields of labor.

There is a continuous growing in the smallness of the "room-at-the-top" for both men and women—less marriages, less homes. Something is radically wrong. Would it not be best to see to it that all boys and girls are properly prepared and better fitted and equipped for home-life, and to the end that all will the better and more surely enjoy the environment within which each may (in the main must) be destined to pass their several lives—to the end that there may be more homes and less competition in the field rightfully belonging to man. Home-building should be the highest and greatest aim of the nation. Is present-day education tending to such end?

Seeing, knowing these defects in present-day education, (that it tends to the future of both sex,) why do not the present-day home-keepers, the fathers and mothers, demand from those having charge of educational matters that the evil be remedied, that there be instituted in our every school departments for domestic education—departments similar to the manual training departments for boys, and to the end that the girls of the nation may be prepared for the home-duties of life, and these preferably to an education fitting them for competitors against man.

The trades for boys and domestic education for girls should be part of the public school system. Every school division (city, township or what not,) should provide equipment and instruction whereby the young of both sexes may secure proper training for industrial efficiency and be assured of a happy and contented home-life.
